Ebatco deemed a COVID-19 Essential Business

Dear Customers:

Ebatco is a nanotechnology service and development company. The focus of our business is to provide contract lab services, technical and business consulting, custom R&D, and nanotech-enabling instrumental products. We are a recognized authority in the field of nano/micro scale material and device testing and characterization. Our company's quality system and lab services have been accredited for ISO/IEC 17025 for more than two years. We work with a wide variety of materials and testing procedures. We have been serving and supporting many essential businesses and manufacturers including agriculture, biotechnology, chemical, critical manufacturing, food, medical device, pharmaceutical, scientific research and development, semiconductor, etc. We are deemed an essential business as defined and listed by Minnesota State Government:

Ebatco has implemented heightened hygiene within our facility, established cleaning and social distancing protocols, and has taken other measures to help maintain our staff members' health and safety. These measures have helped and will help to keep the team remain healthy and performing well.

We are open for business, ready to serve, and will continue to be open until directed otherwise by the US, Minnesota State and local government. Please feel free to contact us if you think we could help you to learn more about your products, to optimize processes for reduction in manufacturing costs, or to speed up the market release process, or to pinpoint a root cause of failure, so that we can work together to defeat the COVID-19 virus as a worldwide community shortly.

Best wishes to you, your family and your community during this challenging time! May you and all of us be safe and healthy!
